on to outline various issues including; the role of marketing in commercial banking; relationship banking and the branch office network; private and direct banking; pricing financial products and services and credit and market risk. The author has also included a large range of case-studies which are geographically diverse and will provide the reader with a valuable breadth of reference.

Parliamentary Debates (Hansard).

The subject is introduced with a discussion on the importance of sound lending to the standing of a bank. The history of international lending is outlined, some background is given of the banks active in the field and what the author means by international lending is defined. T.H.Donaldson then goes on to describe the various analytical methods used in analysing companies and countries, distinguishing between domestic and international methods. He considers the special factors involved in lending to multinational companies and outlines the main facilities used. Specialised types of lending (project, shipping and syndicated) are also examined. Recent experience of international lending is looked at. This is based on both public information and the views of a variety of bankers expressed in interviews. The final chapter looks at the future of international lending. In the second edition of this book the historical and outlook sections have been updated. The research has been repeated with an eye for changes, new instruments and the advent of securitization.

Marketing for the Bank Executive

This book brings outstanding expertise and provides insightful perspectives from nineteen authors with diverse backgrounds, including officials from international organizations, national regulators, and commercial banking, as well as academics in law, economics, political economy, and finance. The authors not only shed light on the causes of the financial turmoil, but also present thoughtful proposals that contribute to the future policy debate, and discuss opportunities that financial services can offer in funding activities which raise standards of living through initiatives in microfinance, renewable energy, and food distribution. The contributions to this volume tackle several of the thorniest issues of financial regulation in a post-crisis environment, such as: the mechanics of contagion within the financial system and the role of liquidity; moral hazard when large financial institutions are no longer subject to the disciplinary effects of bankruptcy; bank capital requirements; management compensation; design of bank resolution schemes; a function-centric versus
