The garden of the soul, or, A manual of spiritual exercises and instructions for Christians [by R.Challoner]. [Followed by] The Epistles and Gospels for the Sundays throughout the year. [2 issues].

The Life of the Messenger is a pioneering work that details the life of the Holy Prophet of Islam. This text looks into the life of the Prophet and it weaves an intricate and complex narrative of the factors which influenced the struggle for the spread of Islam. Through extensive research, Shaykh Rasul Jafariyan has been able to craft together many details which were not widely known before. This is the first time that a book of this caliber and depth has been translated and it constitutes one of the most detailed Jafari researched biographies of the Holy Prophet in the English language.

The Life of the Messenger- Part One

Claire and Samantha have literally grown up together. Neither one of them have any siblings which cements them together as best friends if not self proclaimed sisters. Working and studying to keep their grades up and their bills paid, Samantha and Claire discover presents on their door step. With no return address, neither of them know where they came from. Seemingly harmless gifts reveal the fact that their previous findings could only have been placed where they were by someone who entered their apartment without permission. Who would break in to their place and why were they leaving such personal gifts? The fact that they have a stalker is made even more clear as a trip to the police station turns up nothing helpful to the disappearance of Claire and their friend Derick but leaves Samantha with a lot of questions about the past between Terrace and her hometown and the disappearance of two police officers from both places. When did Samantha and Claire meet the stalker before? How is it connected to their hometown Calvart, Mississippi? How do the missing police officers fit in, are they dead or are they helping someone who has much darker motives? With the help of a dear friend, Brent in this race against time, he and Samantha work together to uncover the truth, stop the stalker before anyone else gets hurt or taken.

Many writers and artists have undertaken the difficult task of recreating the image of Lenin for their contemporaries and future generations. The Blue Notebook by the well-known Soviet author Emmanuil Kazakevich (1913-1962) has become one of the most popular books about Lenin. A notebook in a blue cover actually did exist. In it Lenin jotted down notes for his famous book State and Revolution which he worked on in the difficult days preceding the Great October Socialist Revolution. At the time Lenin was in hiding at Razliv Station, from where he directed the preparations for the armed uprising. "He was a passionate traveler, a hunter, a crack shot, a top-notch driver, the life of the party, witty and full of fun. Moreover, he was a truly courageous soldier." This portrait of Kazakevich was drawn by his contemporary and colleague, the writer Alexander Tvardovsky. During the Second World War Kazakevich, commander of a platoon, was asked to join the staff of the brigade newspaper. After working on the paper for a short while he asked to be transferred back to the front lines. "The front lines are important to me not only as a patriot, but as a writer," he said. Emmanuil Kazakevich was born in the Ukraine in 1913, the son of a teacher. His first book, a volume of poetry, was published in 1932. He translated the works of Pushkin, Lermontov, and Mayakovsky into Yiddish. Kazakevich's first prose work, The Star, is a harsh, yet sensitive war story which gained him world fame. This was followed by Spring on the Oder, Heart of a Friend, Two in the Steppe, The House on the Square, By the Light of Day and The Blue Notebook, the author's last work. Kazakevich was twice awarded the State Prize for Literature.

that order. All three are reissued in Faber Finds. The central character, Chester Nimmo, is based on Lloyd George. Appropriately, he is a spellbinder. In his Reader's report for the original publisher, Michael Joseph, the literary critic, Walter Allen considered the 'recreation of the very feel of political passions between 1900 and 1914' was 'brilliant' - 'the period, politically, is completely captured in all its intensity.' He ended by saying 'As a state of a politician in action it is quite superb; one feels at the end that here, almost for the first time, is the truth about the politician, the man for whom politics is a way of life in the same dedicated sense as for the artist art may be a way of life, or religion for a priest I think Prisoner of Grace is a great feat of imagination.'

and inspiring milestone in the battle for justice, rights, equality and recognition for Indigenous people.' An updated edition of an epic and remarkable story. In this powerful memoir, Peter Coppin's story emerges; told in fragments, moments of time and memories. A senior Nyamal lawman, Coppin was born in Yarrie country in Western Australia's Pilbara. His was a life of danger, drama and hardship; his people forced to work on pastoral stations for meagre rations, their lives subject to the whims of white pastoralists, government agents and legislators. But Coppin dreamed of a life for his people where they could access education and health services, and control their destinies. Despite great danger to themselves, he and others took part in the first Aboriginal strike in Australia, the Pilbara Strike in 1946. For Peter Coppin the land holds mysteries; it's special and lifegiving and some of it, sacred. Initially uncertain about telling of his extraordinary life and culture, working with trusted friend Jolly Read, the tales spilled forth, building, the fragments into a whole, little by little, tape by tape. To those who asked him questions he said: 'What are you asking me these questions for anyway? Just read the book'. Kangkushot provides valuable insights into the rich and spiritual way Aboriginal people view their lives and land, and their place in it.

Boris Gets a Lizard: A Branches Book (Boris #2)

Here's a fascinating new book which answers the question not many have asked, "Where did racism come from and why, the heck, is it still here?" Pearl Jr. asked this question to herself 30 years ago and has utilized her lifetime to seek the answers. She says, "this is a book of original thought based solely and purely on facts that are supported by the scholarly community. The evolution of the races, an analysis of racial origins and habitats, correlated with the development of different psyches marks this book as a first of its kind that proves a theory that just makes sense. Although race-relations is very complicated, Pearl Jr.'s writing style is conversational and easy-to-read. The Climate: A Perspective Unvisited examines the complexities of the world according to race. Pearl Jr. chronologically details the stimulus that has created the world's varied racial populations, differences in skin, eye and hair color(texture), as well as gives the reason for the distinguishable eye shape of people from (mainly) Southeast Asia. At a recent lecture, Pearl Jr. asked, "Am I the only person who wanted to know these answers?" The audience stood attentively silent waiting to hear more. This manual is intended to create a new movement that states, "The final phase of equality is within our mind." The era of slavery and the days of Jim Crow are legally abolished but what about mindsets that continue a belief system of inferiority and superiority based on race?

"Were all human beings and there shouldve never been racism. . . racism will go down in history as one of the most disastrous mistakes of mankind" comments, speaker/author/activist, Pearl Jr.. "The story of race is so repugnant that only a truly mature person can handle the truth"--therefore, Pearl Jr. was extremely conscientious about attitudes and wrote this manual with a solidly loving, sympathetic and many times, empathetic tone. She also states, "the descendants of the oppressor need not feel responsible because the atrocities that racism created are not the fault of anyone living today." The Climate: A Perspective Unvisited has already sparked much discussion and Pearl Jr. is well on her way to becoming an important leader and voice of reason in the struggle to abolish racism in every form. This is a book for all races; its main theme is education through explanation, because according to Pearl Jr, "We all need to know the truth!" Since its first quarter 2002 release, The Climate: A Perspective Unvisited is already in its second printing. The Murder That Never Was

Looking for Trouble

The second book in the charming Singletree Series. Movie stars, fake relationships, and lots of laughs.

Architecture Oriented Otherwise

So much writing about architecture tends to evaluate it on the basis of its intentions: how closely it corresponds to the artistic will of the designer, the technical skills of the builder, or whether it reflects the spirit of the place and time in which it was built, making it not much more than the willful (or even subconscious) assemblage of objects that result from design and construction techniques. Renowned writer and thinker David Leatherbarrow, in this groundbreaking new book, argues for a richer and more profound, but also simpler, way of thinking about architecture, namely on the basis of how it performs. Not simply how it functions, but how it acts, "its manner of existing in the world," including its effects on the observers and inhabitants of a building as well as on the landscape that situates it. In the process, Leatherbarrow transforms our way of discussing buildings from a passive technical or programmatic assessment to a highly active and engaged examination of the lives and performances, intended and otherwise, of buildings.

This book articulates the first theoretical context for a 'cyborg theatre', metaphorically integrating on-stage bodies with the technologized, digitized, or mediatized, to re-imagine subjectivity for a post-human age. It covers a variety of examples, to propose new theoretical tools for understanding performance in our changing world.
